Managing Director Welcome

A Message from Neroli Manning, Managing Director, Cardinal Health Australia and New Zealand.

Welcome to Cardinal Health. As the Managing Director for Australia and New Zealand, I am thrilled to share our exciting plans for the Hunter region and the opportunities this presents for anyone wishing to join our team.

Cardinal Health is a global leader in medical products, and we are proud to bring our expertise, innovation, and purpose to the region, which will host our very first Australian facility for remanufacturing single-use medical devices.

Healthcare generates significant waste, and we are committed to being part of the solution. Our new site in Beresfield is a bold step toward transforming healthcare sustainability. This facility seeks to reduce the carbon and landfill impact of the health sector by remanufacturing vital devices for reuse like compression sleeves used in hospitals across the country.

We see the Hunter region not just as a site, but as a community we are proud to invest in. We believe in creating purposeful jobs, sharing knowledge, and partnering with local suppliers to build impactful partnerships.

We're not just launching a facility; we're planting roots, forging partnerships, and growing a team that reflects the values of both our company and the region.

If you are looking for a meaningful career where your work supports the healthcare industry, and demonstrates commitment to sustainability and circular economy principles, Cardinal Health is the place for you. Join us and help shape the future of healthcare and be part of a movement that's redefining what healthcare means – for people, communities, and the planet.

Here's the top five things to do in the Hunter region, according to a local!

1. Newcastle Memorial Walk

This 450-meter clifftop walkway offers panoramic views of the stunning coastline and city. Built to commemorate the centenary of the ANZAC landing at Gallipoli, it features steel silhouettes of soldiers and the names of nearly 11,000 Hunter Valley enlistees from World War I.

2. Stockton Sand Dunes

Just north of the city, the Stockton Sand Dunes are the largest moving coastal dunes in the Southern Hemisphere, reaching heights of up to 30 meters. Activities here include sandboarding, 4WD tours, and camel rides, offering adventure amidst stunning landscapes. And while you're there, take in the stunning beach-stretch from Birubi Beach to Stockton where you can surf, swim, fish, or just take in the natural beauty of the Hunter coastline.

3. Get back to Nature

Just six kilometres from Newcastle's city centre, Blackbutt Nature Reserve offers a rich mix of wildlife, walking trails, and family fun. Spanning 182 hectares, it features over 10 km of forested paths and elevated boardwalks where visitors can observe native animals like koalas, wombats, and emus up close. Daily feeding sessions add a deeper look into their behaviour. Families will love the Carnley and Richley Adventure Playgrounds, packed with rope courses, bridges, and slides. With picnic areas and BBQs, Blackbutt is a perfect escape into nature for all ages.

4. Visit world-renowned wineries

The Hunter Valley, just two hours from Sydney, is Australia's oldest wine region, renowned for its Semillon and Shiraz. With over 150 wineries, visitors can enjoy a variety of wine tastings and vineyard tours, often paired with local cheeses and gourmet food. The region also offers award-winning restaurants, hot air balloon rides, spa retreats, and art galleries, making it more than just a wine destination. Towns like Pokolbin and Lovedale provide accommodation for all tastes, from cozy cottages to luxury resorts.

5. Spend a memorable night on the town

As night falls, Newcastle comes alive with vibrant energy and coastal charm. Start with dinner on Darby Street, where diverse cuisines and buzzing eateries offer the perfect prelude. Catch a show at the Civic Theatre, showcasing top-tier performances in a stunning historic setting. Afterwards, unwind with a nightcap at a cosy wine bar or take in breathtaking views with a cocktail at rooftop bars in luxury hotels like The Kingsley or QT. Whether you're after culture, flavour, or stylish relaxation, Newcastle's nightlife promises a memorable evening.
